SHERMAN'S RETURN CHEERED IN UTICA

Celebration in Honor of Vice Presidential Nominee Continues All Night.

UTICA, N. Y., July 3.-It was not un til the early morning hours today that the celebration over the return of Representative James S. Sherman, Vice Presidential candidate, quieted down. Such a din and noise fest the city has never heard before.

Ancient cannon belched forth thunderous roars, monster steam whisties shrieked and ripped the air, red fire was burned along Genesee street until the air was suffocating with the burned powder, and church bells and chimes were almost torn from their places.

The progress of the Vice Presidential nominee from the railroad station to his home a mile away was like the return of a victory-crowned hero. The streets of the city were crowded with citizens and those who came in for miles around to participate in the welcome, and for hours the city was lighted up with the weird red lights. The small boy did not overlook the opportunity to have a premature celebration of the Fourth of July, either.

A big reception had been planned for the return of Sherman immediately after the convention, but his illness at Cleveland, necessitated a postponement. He was visibly weak when he walked from his private car at the station to He was visibly weak when he walked from his private car at the station to the carriage in which Mrs. Sherman awaited him. As the carriage passed slowly up Genesee street, he was obliged to doff his hat repeatedly, and he made a short speech before he went into his house.

When Dr. Ryan, of the Harlem Hospital, arrived he said the lad would have had practically no chance of recovery had it not been for the able work of the women amateur surgeons. Rempt was taken to the hospital, where it was said he probably would live. His women rescuers, not one of whom would give her name, went back to their seats in the car, the motorman of which, William Kelso, of 1268 Second avenue, was arrested.

LONDON'S NEW Y. M. C. A. After sixty years of doing without a complete Young Men's Christian Association building. London, the birthplace of the movement, is to have what it needs in this particular. The new head-quarters in Tottenham Court road will be a stately pile of buildings designed by Rowland Plumbe. Hundreds of buses pass the site every hour, and it is also connected with London's vast network of trams and tubes. The British Museum is only a few minutes' walk away and the building will cost X750,000. Only a little over half the amount is now available, but a widespread appeal is being made for the remainder.

tures of the national conventions of W. A. Wadsworth at the homestead. With young Roosevelt came a party of young men from Washington, all of whom will participate in the Fourth of July sports on the homestead lawn.

These sports are conducted by the Genesse Valley Hunt Club and consist of difficult feats in equestrianism. They are listed as riding for scarfs, javelin throwing, lemon slicing, manikin race, cavalry fight, tandem race, saber, over hurdies, riding for rings, picking up objects and Turks' heads.

Interest in the manikin race is always keen from the fact that President Roosevelt was the winner of it fourteen years ago. His son failed last year to win, but will try again. Kermit Roosevelt was annoyed on learning that his presence in Geneseo was known to the such as a leader in shaping political opinions in the epoch-making controversies leading up to the conventions of 1860, all of which he attended, and from which he prophetically foresaw the coming conflict between the North and the South.

Mr. Halstead reported many of the memorable conflicts of the war for his newspaper, and was with the German forces in the France-Prussian way of 1870. He went to Iceland with Cyrus Field and Bayard Taylor to the Millennial Celebration, was with Weyler in Cuba, with General Merritt in Honolulu, and with General Otis at Manila, and traveled in all of the continents, of which he wrote vividly and force-fully.

his presence in Geneseo was known to the papers. He said:

"I had to abandon a march with a company of soldiers because I was followed everywhere and given no peace. But I suppose I must expect this as long as I am a President's son. Next year father will be an ex-President and may come to Geneseo himself, and I will get a little peace."

Dr. Woodward, like many others who will arrive at such a decision after to morrow, believes that the old axiom of "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" was manufactured especially for the Fourth of July.

Dr. Woodward's time is occupied in devising means, to prevent disease. Rather appuehensively, therefore, he views the extended preparations juvenile Washington is making to observe the Fourth, and in a statement issued today, he warns the public against the many acts that go to make up the long casulatly list. Prompt medical attention is one of the special recommendations made by Dr. Woodward.
